South Weymouth Items.

—There is to be a new fire alarm placed on Pond Plain at the corner of Thicket and Pond streets to be known as No. 56.

—The alarm is to be set by Mr. and Mrs. Albert Dandrea, Sunday, a girl.

—William Howe, formerly employed at J. C. Howe's, has accepted a situation as driver for George H. Shaw.

—The alarm of fire rung in fire box No. 56, which was caused by some smoke ascending from the houses on Main street, occupied by John Kochier. Some trouble with the water pipe in the basement, the nearest hydrant being nearly half a mile from the house, but whatever fire there may have been was easily extinguished.

—The new fire alarm box, in use since No. 5, pending the arrival of the new apparatus, reminds one of the gear made famous by Thomas Worth in his famous "The Fireman's Fund" and the Fire Brigade, that years ago used to be stuck up in every country post and barbershop in the country, to prevent being thrown from his seat when the jumping, jolting old thing came along.

—They have been living like "aldermen" at the stand on Huckleberry Pond lately. The old boys, says the paper, have been nightingales, a thirty pound tortoise and have had soups ever since. His head, as big as a man's, is the only thing getting over his propensity to hit at anything that comes that way.

—A year old child of Albert Dandrea fell from a second story window, the other day out onto a board platform below but fate was other wise in store for him and he came to smiling.

—The graduating exercises of the South High school occur Thursday evening, June 25, at 8 p. m. at the school. Rev. G. Stuart, vestryman, Lillian Blanchard salutatorian, Besse F. Nash, Lura Cunningham, Clara C. Clegg, Anna Clegg, W. Porter Pratt, Frank H. Howe, Parker E. Thomas and Charles G. Babcock. Miss Anna Clegg, Anna Clegg, Anna Clegg, over 18 per cent for the four years. There was a difference of but a fraction of one per cent between Anna Clegg and Anna Clegg, Cushing and Nash.

DYING.
Festing out of the studior into a paper light.
Stepping behind the curtain,
Getting ready to paint.
Leaving beside the bushes.
Done with the paint, the artist,
Done with his tears and toil,
Tired of all care, a plaything,
Left the studio room alone,
Ready to bid his friends farewell,
Wondering who will see Painting on the shoulder.
This sweet going away.

THE BEECH TREE.

There stood in the forest an old beech tree. Her top was shattered by lightning, her sides were hollow, and pieces of fungus grew on her bark. She was the oldest of a numerous family, but she had not been uprooted, nor had she been torn down, but had only one daughter remained to her. This daughter was a young beech tree, with smooth bark and heaven aspiring crest and only 80 years old. This is the best tree for a forest.

The old tree still thrusted out her twigs and leaves, in the spring, but she felt that her life was drawing to a close, for it cost her great strength to hold her up, and she knew that she knew that she had die, but she felt her love increase for her beautiful daughter.

Spring was approaching. The branches were still covered with the galls of the bumble bee, but the young ones, and the new wind, had melted the snow. The rivers and brooks were swelling with melted ice. In the meadows the silvery catkins burst from their wraps, and the snowdrops peeped timidly from the earth, in the white carpet of the forest ground.

The old tree spoke to the young: "To-night comes the violent howl wind. It will throw me down upon my bed of leaves that I have scattered in the forest, and you will be left alone. To-day I will not come, and the tree will stand."

"The old tree spoke to the young: "To-night comes the violent howl wind. It will throw me down upon my bed of leaves that I have scattered in the forest, and you will be left alone. To-day I will not come, and the tree will stand."

The old tree had come to the young: "To-night comes the violent howl wind. It will throw me down upon my bed of leaves that I have scattered in the forest, and you will be left alone. To-day I will not come, and the tree will stand."

A Few Words on Refrigerator Requirements:

A Refrigerator, to be the best, must be simple, durable, economical in ice, free from odor, not liable to get out of order, no hidden corners where disease germs can lurk, free circulation of cold air and in all ways adapted to its intended uses.

The only refrigerator in the world which invariably fills all these requirements is the Correspondence and items of news are solicited from all readers of the Gazette. Every one knows of some interesting facts or happenings that others are anxious to hear.

While we have a regular corps of regular columnists, there is much of interest in that the nature of things can get. Let your opinion, your local paper and yours in your town lead you in making the Gazette more bright and newsy.

Friday, June 21, 1895.

Please Take Notice.

During the month of June, July and August our office will close on Saturday afternoons at 3 o'clock, in accordance with the custom of past years.

5% Dividends.

The Weymouth Savings Bank will declare a dividend of 5 1/2 per cent. the six months ended June 1, 1895, and the dividend of 5 1/2 per cent. the previous six months.

Scholastic's Meeting.

The schoolmen held their regular meeting Tuesday but took no decided action on the petition of the Braintree and Weymouth Street Railroads to have the Weymouth papers submitted to the board by the engineer of road.

Graduation Exercises.

South High, Thursday, June 27, at 7:30 p.m.—North High, Friday, June 28, at 7:30 p.m.—Athens, Thursday, June 27, at 3 p.m.—Franklin, Friday, June 28, at 3 p.m.—Pratt, Friday, June 28, at 3 p.m.—Hollis, Friday, June 28, at 3 p.m.—The exercises will commence promptly upon the hour mentioned.

Persons holding reserved seat tickets should be in their seats at the appointed hour as seats will not be held.

What Will They Say This Week?

It can hardly be expected that the directors of the W. & B. Street Railroads will be pleased, but perhaps if they had the aid of the geni of a lamp or ring speaking of in "All the World's a Stage," it might be possible for them to have the cars running round only 4 that the first car will run. This is about the only authentic statement that we have received of papers regarding the opening of the road—South Shore road, last week.

May Transfer.

There have been some misunderstandings in regard to fares. One may go from South Weymouth to Braintree, but if he wants to transfer to the conductor that he wants to transfer and one may also go from Braintree to Weymouth Landing, but if he wants to transfer to the conductor that he wants to transfer. The transfer checks are not issued as yet but the conductors will see that that makes all the difference in the case. Of course the rule holds good for those going to the Landing or points near the line in East Braintree to South Weymouth Landing or a short distance along the line into East Braintree for a single fare.

Of course the rule holds good for those going to the Landing or points near the line in East Braintree to South Weymouth Landing or a short distance along the line into East Braintree for a single fare.

Will Celebrate the Fourth.

About twenty-five citizens met in Arcanum hall, Tuesday evening, to start a committee to have a Fourth of July an enthusiastic meeting. An effort will be made to raise $500 by subscription and a great deal of money will be raised by an early part of the day, and a large amount of an early parade of horribles and trades with a military adjunct, numerous speakers of all kinds, and a large amount of fireworks, pump, tugs of war, etc. There will be two ball games, and the Institutes and King Phillips of Rockland. There will be a large display of fireworks. It is expected that all preceding celebrations will be suspended, and the Weymouth people will go to town tonight and all interested are invited to come to Arcanum hall at eight o'clock.

Opening of the Electric Road.

At 10 o'clock Saturday evening the first car to run over the South Weymouth and Braintree line, from Lincoln Street Railroad, started from Lincoln square in charge of Dennis Travers, motor man, and was followed by a large crowd. It was quickly followed by another car run by Edward Whitehouse and George Brooks, who had the honor of the first waving of hands and handkerchiefs, the arrival of the first car from Rockland and Columbia square. Every inch of space on the cars was utilized by girls making trips every half hour, and at their rate on the first electric that ran into South Weymouth from the Landing.

At 10 o'clock Saturday evening with fireworks and canons crackers. After a short stop at the place they continued on their route to the Landing. At the corner of Columbia and Main streets they were joined by a large crowd who were properly joined to carry the current beyond this point, but a crowd seized the car and pulled it into the Columbia square. Here one of the largest crowds ever seen in South Weymouth was in waiting and the bells of the church bells, blowing with ringing of the church bells, blowing the bugles, the Institutes, fireworks, etc. Due to the great interest in the arrival of the road, the spectators and the reporters to partake of the great interest at the hotel room on Pleasant street. The Weymouth band furnished the music along the way.

During the evening the band was making trips every half hour, and to Braintree on Pleasant street.

North High Notes.

The class of '92, Miss Hamilton, the popular teacher who won the Gazette vote for the best teacher in the Method church vestry, this evening, the occasion of her farewell.

Miss E. Brooks, a graduate of Boston University, is substituting for the remainder of the year for Miss Bray who has been called away by sickness.

Spring Medicine

Is a necessity because the tonic of winter is gone, and milder weather, increased moisture, accumulated impurities in the blood, and debilitated condition of the body, open the way for that tired feeling, nervousness, and other ills. The skin, nervous members, and the various organs strive in vain to relieve the impure current of life. They all welcome

Hood's Sarsa Sparilla

To assist nature at the time when she needs help to carry the blood, tone and strengthen the laboring organs and build up the nerves.

"Two years ago I took several bottles of Hood's Sarsa Sparilla when I was in poor health and lost weight, the most I ever weighed was 120 pounds, and after an attack of the grip I was down to a weight of 90 pounds. The grip had no appetite and I fell off in weight to ninety-four pounds.

Purifies

The Blood

I began taking Hood's Sarsa Sparilla again and after taking two bottles I gained eleven pounds in weight." F. B. BENTLEY, West Millbury, Mass.

Five Thousand People Witness the Pageant.

Monday, the Seventeenth, was a great day for Weymouth, and for Delphi Lodge No. 15, of F. P. as well as for many visitors from the towns and cities in the vicinity.

A short time since, Judge James H. Flint, the Grand Master of the Massachusetts Knights of Pythias, and two bridesmaids, Miss Clara P. West and Miss Fannie Powers, were married at the Weymouth Heights.

They were handsomely dressed in costumes of pink silk and chiffon, her flowers were Dardia roses.

The bride's parents are Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Bond, of Weymouth, and the maid of honor an uncle of the bride, the brothers were Harry V. Bond, of Weymouth, and Walter E. Thompson of Weymouth Heights.

They were handsomely decorated with pines, ferns and flowers. The ceremony was performed in the presence of only the immediate relatives. It was followed by a reception in the hall of the Knights of Pythias.

A SONG.
My little leaves, why are you glad?
With the birds, in the little bower,
Small clapping leaves, so freshly clad
In a green world that never grieves.
Answer me, who are you? I am a
Love, God, love God! they sing.
Gay as the birds a' wing.

My little flowers, why are you glad?
With the birds, in the little bower,
Sweet purity no man can grieve,
Answer me, who are you? I am a
Love, God, love God! they sing.
Gay as the birds a' wing.

Fresh blades of grass, your delight?
With the birds, in the little bower?
Thick y' upering, a fair sunbeam
In your little bower, who are you? I am a Love, God, love God! they sing.
Gay as the birds a' wing.

First Love.

I have for years led a roving life and am most at home in railway carriages, waiting rooms, hotels and restaurants. On this account my reading has been of all kinds, and I have given up many books to be donated to library lists. Only German and French romances and novels by authors unknown to me, or written whose style I do not enjoy, inspire me with an unconquerable respect.

Books by Dryden and Pope I never venture to open, even in the greatest dearth reading matter. Besides I eagerly welcome everything published by the latest journals and look through each weekly and monthly periodical and waiting room.

That is why I have a succession of fragments of a considerable number of stories in my head, and as their classification does not especially interest me it thus happens that I occasionally join them together in the making of the other. Some of these dovelated stories please me quite as well as the noted novels of famous authors.

This is a matter of taste, and I allow myself no criticism.

Sometimes I finish a story, the beginning of which I have read, or invent the first chapter for the conclusion of a romance which has fallen into my hands. Then, after a time, it is possible that I have not been able to find a place for it, and it becomes a fragment.

In most cases indeed I have of a morning when I leave a city forgotten what I have read there on the preceding evening. But a long time pleases me not mine, I believe, I read in a book in this review.

It must have been many years since, for several omnivorous readers among my French acquaintances, of whom I made inquiry regarding that recently recognized state of mind, informed me that it is also possible that I found it in Berlin or London. Should the owner at any time reclaim it, I will return his property with thanks. Here is the story as it has shaped itself little by little in my head.

The following narrative is one of these tales. I have forgotten where I read it for the first time. Whether the tale was exactly as I now have it in my mind I do not any longer know. But the idea is not mine. I believe I read it in a book in this review.

THE DAFFODILS.

And then my heart with pleasure fills
And dances with the daffodils.
Oh, the laughter of the lilles in the sun!
Purer joy and deeper gladness there is none;
When they hear my lady's a rock.
As when the sun is in the sky,
How they shake with golden laughter every one!
Oh, laughing—oh, the dancing daffodil!
Shaking in the breeze
Under budding trees.
By the lake that lies below the silent hills.
Oh, the trellis of the lilles on the wavy water, saffron stream, and spear, and sword!
Waiting for my lady's a rock.
To achieve the lilles, the gayway upand.
Oh, laughing—oh, the dancing daffodil!
Shaking in the breeze
By the lake that lies below the silent hills.
Oh, the silence of the lilles as they pray,
When the silent mists wrap us softly from the sun.
And my lady's name is there,
In the solemn winter prayer.
As when the sun is in the sky,
Oh, the laughing—oh, the dancing daffodil!
Shaking in the breeze
By the lake that lies below the silent hills.

THE SPIDER'S WEB.

Rosy complexioned and in her fresh spring toilet, she was truly beautiful.

Under her silvery lashes her amorous eyes had a soft caressing light that illuminated her face with kindness.

The form, though somewhat slender, was well modeled, and the lines of the neck set off all the attractiveness of a head enclosed by a profusion of blond locks.

The young wife and her husband were in a carriage, the newly wedded pair were proceeding rapidly along the sun filled river bank, thinking of some way of enjoying the day.

Giorgio paused to allow them to admire the flowers upon a spur of the incline, where the vines, like wild nests, stretched from distance to distance, half concealed by trees.

"Do you wish to go up there?" asked

Poletta.

She pointed with her delicate hand, from which she had drawn her glove, to the heights of Bellevue.

"I am jealous of this woman, and of Giobio die. Adien, Giorgio!"—From her husband.

"Let it be postponed for awhile."

Giorgio hesitated.

"With Giorgio returned, he found her calm, but a little nervous.

Several days passed, then Poletta took to her bed, and Giorgio, who had been the only which had not been able to carry her to the tomb a year before reappeared. The physician announced that all was over; she would not outlast the fall of the year.

Poletta gazed with coldness, of which she gave no explanation. He attended her, watched over her, supplicated her to tell him why she had changed, but she remained silent, and her calmness increased.

One morning she said to him, "You will return early today, will you not,

Giorgio?"

He bent over her, kissing her tenderfully.

"Yes, my darling," he said.

The evening, when he returned, she was dead. She held in her rigid hands a letter—the letter of Chiara. In pencil

she had added these words:

"I am jealous of this woman, and of Giobio die. Adien, Giorgio!"—From

her husband.

One morning she said to him, "You

will return early today, will you not,

Giorgio?"

No, certainly not.

After a long time he said, "I have been written a long time ago," said the woman.

"It is directed to my husband," responded Poletta. The man smiled smilingly.

"A letter from a woman," he thought.

Should she burn this letter unopened?

What might it be? Should she give it to Giorgio?

No, certainly not.

After a long time she broke the seal,

and this is what she read:

"My dear Giorgio, I am sick and sad.

The house is a prison. I seem to find in it something tragical, leading to revenge and death.

"Although it is ended, completely ended, do not doubt but we shall see each other again. You will come to me to ensure but season? Do you not remember your oath of eternal fidelity?

"I have not forgotten, and have returned to our nest. Now I would like to be surrounded by the things you cares for.

"I have re-entered this room, filled with tokens of your love. That reclining chair has seated you frequently, when, returning from the sun, you were slow to get up.

"I have reviewed all that year of happiness, day by day and only desire to do more in the house where you and I have lived."

Poletta gave a long cry and fell to the floor. When she returned to her reality, the sun had set, and the room was dark. Slowly she rose, the window tinted with pale light, forming a luminous garland. Nothing was changed in the life of the world about her. There was the same azur sky, the same striped clouds, the same blue hills, the same blue water, the same blue sky, the same blue hills, the same blue water, the same blue sky, the same blue hills, the same blue water, the
